Prayer by Senator Gunter:

Our Father in heaven, this is the beginning. And it is altogether fitting and proper on this opening day of the session to begin it all by praying to you. We ask you to make us able to walk worthy of our calling as Senators. We ask you to help us to use your power in the awesome responsibility of representing the best interests of the people of Florida.

It's not easy, Lord, in this deliberative process, to find the truth and to sift out wisdom. But we claim your promise to ask and it shall be given, to seek and we shall find, to knock and it shall be opened. Help us to believe that, O God, and to seek your will in our work with a serious mind and a sincere heart. It is with a sense of anticipation for the days ahead that we make this prayer in thy holy name. Amen.

The President presented the Governor who delivered the following message to the Legislature concerning the condition of the State and made his recommendations as required by Article IV, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of Florida:

Welcome, once again, to Tallahassee. You met here in special session in January, but today marks the beginning of the first regular session for many of your members. And it marks the first regular session which I am privileged to address as Governor.

As I stand before you today, it gives me great pleasure to look to the past, as well as to the future. For it was in this House, in 1959, that I first took the oath of elective office. It was in these legislative halls for twelve years that I gained both knowledge and inspiration from members of both parties in both houses. As I look out at this gathering today, I see not only some of my closest friends but also one of the finest legislatures to ever serve in Tallahassee. You new members are embarking upon your responsibilities, and I, as a new governor, am embarking upon mine, at a time of unprecedented opportunity and challenge in this state.

The decade of the sixties was a time when we, spurred on by reapportionment, took the first decisive steps to provide a more effective Florida government by revising our constitution, strengthening our legislature, and reorganizing our executive branch.

The decade of the seventies is a time when we can, and we must, seek to make these basic reforms more perfect and begin to effect changes which were never possible in the past. We can, if we have the courage and the will, begin in this decade to better serve all the people, and not just the special few. We can begin to help the poor help themselves, to rehabilitate the criminal, to protect the consumer, to abate pollution, to revitalize education, to modernize the courts, to improve transportation, and to make government more responsive, effective, and efficient. Obviously, we cannot complete these programs in this session—or in any one session. But we can begin, and we can make real strides in these and other areas of need. I have pledged to the people that these four years will be a time of reform and progress in the State of Florida, and, with your help and your dedication to these same goals, I fully intend to keep that promise.

Tax Reform

My main promise to the people, as you well know, was aimed at the one reform which is basic to all others—the need for a more elastic and more equitable tax base in this state.

The need for new revenue should be quite apparent now. I have submitted to you a $1.44 billion general revenue budget for the 1971-72 fiscal year. This is approximately $170 million more than we can anticipate from our present tax sources in the coming year. The budget, I believe, fairly provides for the state's most urgent needs at a time when our financial situation is so critical. In the limited time available to us, this administration cut over one-half billion dollars from the original requests. If there is still fat in the budget, I welcome your efforts to find and eliminate it. There is simply no excuse for waste in government, particularly when so many of our real needs are not being met—simply because we do not have the money. You should be aware, however, that 56 per cent of the budget is in the form of state aid to local school districts and governments. Further cuts in these areas would only force an even greater local tax burden on the property owners in your home counties.

Let no one falsely raise the spectre of big spending simply as a device to avoid tax reform. Let no one today give yesterday's answer for every fiscal crisis—further expansion or increases in consumer taxes without first requiring big business to pay its fair share. And let me make it very clear—this administration cannot, and will not, accept another penny increase in the sales tax to resolve our present fiscal dilemma.

The time for tax reform is now, and I am asking you to take it up as your first order of business. I am asking you to give the people the early vote on the corporate income tax amendment, enact a severance tax on phosphate and other minerals, close unjustified loopholes in the sales tax law, and eliminate the regressive sales tax on household utilities. Once you have finished with tax reform, adopt a budget which you feel adequately meets the needs of the state. Then, if there is a surplus, I recommend you begin repealing other regressive and unfair taxes in our tax structure. By proceeding in this way, you can clearly separate the issue of equity involved in tax reform from the political rhetoric we've heard so often in the past.

Because it is the most important part of my "fair share" tax reform program, let me dwell for a moment on the corporate income tax. Most of the burden of this tax will not fall on the Florida businessman. It is estimated that approximately 90 per cent of the revenue from this tax will come from 5 per cent of the corporations, large multi-state corporations. In fact, it is estimated that approximately 86,000 of the 110,000 corporations in Florida will not pay a single dime under this proposal. For the same reason, very little of this tax will be passed on to the consumer. These large interstate corporations have nationwide pricing policies, and their product costs the same regardless of the particular tax structure of a state. In most cases, the federal government will pick up 48 per cent of the burden of this tax since it is completely deductible. This, my friends, is forced revenue sharing. If you believe in strengthening state government and slowing the flow of Florida tax dollars to Washington, you should certainly be for this tax.

You have already passed the constitutional amendment permitting such a tax, and the only issue remaining is when you are going to allow the people to have their say. The amendment will be on the general election ballot in 1972, but the people cry out for action now. The only alternatives are certain other business taxes or drastic budget cuts, either of which I believe you would find far less acceptable.

Although I've devoted much of my attention as Governor to reform of the state tax structure, I am also very concerned about reforming the local tax structure. There are three measures which I think you should seriously consider. First, the bill limiting exemptions in the property tax to only those properties actually used for charitable, fraternal and religious purposes. In the past, we took income-producing properties of such organizations off the tax rolls. By their absence, other property owners are having to unfairly pay higher taxes. Second is the bill to reform the municipal utility tax. While some cities are taxing the smallest household users the highest tax rate on top of the highest utility rates, the largest and wealthiest users are paying the lowest tax rates on the lowest utility rates. This must end. Not only will this bill make the municipal utility tax more fair, it will produce a significant amount of money for many of our cities. Third is the possibility of an additional penny on the gas tax. I recommend it and I submit that first priority on this revenue should go to local governments to help relieve their acute problems.

For too long, Florida government has given special breaks and favors to the politically influential. A shadow government of special interest lobbyists has skillfully worked our legislative halls, preserving tax inequities and avoiding spending reform. Now a new day has come to Florida, and it is time we set about helping the middle and lower income people who were too often neglected while others flourished.

People

Consider the area of housing.

The experience of the last several years has shown us that government alone cannot solve the problems of inadequate and substandard housing, but private enterprise, working with government, can have a significant impact on the vast shortages which exist. Right now in Florida, more than 75 per cent of our families cannot afford a house which costs more than $15,000—and I don't have to tell you how few houses can be purchased for less than $15,000. We know from recent information that approximately 340,000 Floridians live in substandard housing and that the problem is growing because new construction is not keeping up with new families coming into our state. We also know that government project housing is not the answer.

I think we probably all agree on the value of individual home ownership, but single-family housing is not within the ability of state government to provide. Therefore, I recommend the following legislation which will enable us to stimulate the private production of housing for all of our citizens.

First, a $2 million state program for housing assistance. Grants under this program would be used by local governments to purchase land for resale to nonprofit sponsors at prices below market rates. These nonprofit sponsors, in turn, would construct and sell the new housing to low-income families under available federal programs of mortgage assistance. It has been estimated that this state expenditure of $2 million will generate approximately $90 million of private construction activity, putting an additional 4,500 greatly needed housing units on the market. Second, the creation of a housing finance agency within the Department of Community Affairs. This agency could issue revenue bonds and purchase federally insured mortgages, which are now held by private financial institutions. These banks, savings and loan associations, and other institutions could then reinvest their funds in additional mortgages. This plan would not involve any of our general revenue, nor would it in any way put the state in the housing business. Rather, it would stimulate the private sector to help us solve one of our most pressing social problems. Third, the enactment of a uniform building code for manufactured homes. This act would eliminate the maze of local building code restrictions which have impeded the utilization of new and improved technology and materials in the production and distribution of lower-cost housing. Fourth, adoption of a statewide housing code which will provide basic minimum standards deemed essential for safe and healthful living. Passage of this act would be a significant step toward the rehabilitation of those dilapidated or deteriorated homes which are now occupied by Florida residents. Fifth, the redesignation of the existing division of technical assistance, in the Department of Community Affairs, as the Division of Housing and Community Development. This would identify housing as a separate and distinct area of state concern and would serve to emphasize that housing is an integral part of community development.

I urge the appropriate committees to examine closely the drafts of legislation which will be presented on these housing programs. I believe that your objective consideration will persuade you that our efforts have been directed at maximizing the impact of scarce state funds by using these funds primarily as a catalyst for private efforts.

For years we have watched the problems of Florida's agricultural workers—migrant and non-migrant alike—growing steadily worse. We must act now to reverse that trend by attacking the problem in several interrelated areas. With this in mind, I have asked members of my staff and the appropriate department heads to study the matter to identify what can be done. I urge that your joint legislative commission work with us to develop a comprehensive, long-range solution to this complex and enormous problem.

Nevertheless, we cannot wait for that comprehensive plan before moving on two sorely needed items, so I ask that you consider providing a workable program of workmen's compensation and an unemployment insurance for agricultural workers. We must in this session expand the unemployment insurance program to those areas mandated by congress last year. These include employees of our university system and state hospitals, and I am recommending that you also extend coverage to all other state employees as well. In addition, we should raise unemployment benefits in Florida, which now has one of the lowest rates in the nation. Our maximum weekly benefit is forty-seven dollars, or only 35 per cent of the average weekly wage in covered employment. I recommend that we increase the maximum to approximately 66 per cent of the average weekly wage.

I also ask you to help me help those unfortunate families with husbands, fathers or sons who are passing long wasted days as prisoners of war, or whose existence is tragically unknown and so are now listed as missing in action. We all regret that they are not here with their families, but we must not fail to grasp that their absence presents practical as well as emotional problems. We need immediate legislation to permit their families to conduct routine business and legal matters which in normal times would require the signatures of those now not here.

Still another kind of family problem is providing aid to families with dependent children. Presently, AFDC is paid on the basis of 60 per cent of the cost of meeting bare minimum needs. I recognize the weaknesses and the faults of the present welfare system, so do you, and so do those Floridians who, by force of circumstances, must rely on the system for food, shelter and clothing. I urge that you examine the alternatives carefully. When you do, I believe you will agree that the increase from 60 per cent to 70 per cent of need is justified both in human terms and in terms of the increased federal dollars that will result.

One of the most perplexing problems we face today is that of the increase in drug abuse and alcoholism. We have not yet been able to make a dent in this problem which we little understand. I believe we may agree that the present method of dealing with alcoholism through the criminal justice system is expensive and—seemingly—futile. I will support proposals to alter this approach and treat the problem as a community problem through community-based alcoholic rehabilitation centers. I think we can also agree that our present drug laws must be reviewed and improved to provide a comprehensive approach covering both punishment and treatment. Consolidated efforts in the control of drug use have started in the state drug abuse program, which is now about six months old. I believe this program is on the right track in its support of those community-based programs which have demonstrated their effectiveness in the rehabilitation of drug-dependent persons. I am recommending an appropriation of $242,000 to continue our state program and another $500,000 for local grants which can be used to maximize federal funds to meet this growing problem.

The concern of many of our citizens over soaring automobile insurance rates did not disappear with the temporary solution we arrived at in the earlier special session. The interim plan has successfully stabilized the situation for the time being—but it expires next November 1. I urge you to make as much progress as possible in this regular session in the search for a more permanent plan which will be fair to all. This should include consideration of a limited no-fault program and group plans for auto liability coverage.

Criminal Justice

It should be obvious to everyone that Florida's system of criminal justice is failing. Our law enforcement and correctional officers are underpaid and, in many instances, under-trained for the sensitive and dangerous service they are called upon to perform. Our court dockets cannot keep pace with ever-increasing crime rates, our jails and prisons are overcrowded and understaffed, and our rehabilitation, probation and parole services are woefully inadequate. More than 80 per cent of those arrested are repeaters—people who have been punished before but not rehabilitated. Yet we know that if the state is to imprison these people for the public's safety, it should also provide programs to correct their behavior and restructure their life patterns. This is not to say we should be soft on crime, or on those who commit crime. On the contrary, the most effective way to combat crime is through the creation of a system of criminal justice to break the cycle of bitterness, fury and frustration which merely breeds more crime.

Solutions do not lie simply in building new prisons, employing more judges, or increasing the probation and parole staff, for we cannot treat the various aspects of criminal justice as separate entities. We must recognize that the functions of law enforcement, courts, prisons, and probation and parole services are all closely interwoven, with each having an impact upon the other. In making my recommendations to you, I acknowledge the excellent work done by your own committees and members of the media in the area of criminal justice. I believe we are largely in agreement in both the problems we found and the solutions we offer. I am recommending a $6.8 million program of state assistance to local law enforcement, to be distributed on the basis of population. This program should provide minimum standards in both training and salaries. I am also proposing that we put an additional 150 highway patrolmen on our highways to augment the fine force we already have.

As many of you know, I have always been a strong advocate of judicial reform. It is imperative that we rewrite the outdated judicial article of Florida's constitution and once more submit the issue to the people in the 1972 general election. However, there will be sufficient time to accomplish this in next year's session should you decide to take it up then. For this session, I recommend legislation providing for the nonpartisan election of judges. I also direct your attention to the injustice and frustration which is endured because of unequal sentencing for similar crimes. The bail system also needs to be reassessed to determine if we could properly release a greater number of those suspected of crime on their own recognizance.

The budget I've submitted to you includes $10.3 million of construction funds for our state correctional system. I recommend that we use this money to develop smaller, community-based institutions to permit the gradual return of prisoners to society as productive rather than destructive members. I am also recommending funds to increase and upgrade the security staffs and improve medical facilities in our prison system.

To further our goal of rehabilitating the imprisoned, I also recommend that we:

Authorize goods manufactured or grown in prison vocational programs to be sold to public institutions.

Extend the work release program from six to twelve months.

Review statutory restrictions on the employment of ex-felons.

Remove the twenty-four hour limit on home visits and allow furlough visits within the discretion of the division of corrections.

We can also relieve the population strain on our prisons through the earlier return of eligible inmates to private life. Toward this end, I am recommending an additional $1.3 million for expansion of probation and parole staff. I am also recommending revision of our laws relating to parole to assure that our young offenders receive their initial interview for parole early and that all inmates are reviewed periodically to determine whether they can be safely returned to society and productive lives. It is my strong belief that the decision of parole must be insulated against political influence. Parole decisions are judicial in nature, and I am convinced they should be made by an independent commission. At the same time, however, I believe that criminal justice has suffered in this state because of a lack of coordination between the professional staffs of the division of corrections and the probation and parole commission. I urge you to explore the possibility of removing the field staff from the parole commission and placing it within the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Education

Of all the services government performs for the people, education is without a doubt the most important, and if our school system is to succeed in its goal of educating all citizens, it must respond to the extremes of talent among us. It must reflect programs of accountability and techniques of assessment. It must more fully predict the needs and prescribe the programs for each individual as an individual. The system must consider not only the needs of the average student, but also the needs of the disadvantaged child or the slow learner who cannot keep up, and the superior student who is frequently not challenged to do his best. We want to be certain that our system is broad enough in its concepts to respond to the unique nature of every child, every teenager and every adult. We must have a program of vocational education which will serve both young and adult citizens alike, and I am recommending $101 million from general revenue funds for such a program. I also believe higher education must better serve Florida by taking educational opportunities where the people are and tailoring these opportunities to their needs. It is hoped you will consider legislation to encourage our institutions of higher learning, both public and private, to develop cooperative programs for the use of their facilities and personnel.

In our state universities, my feeling is that we must give priority to undergraduate education, so I am recommending that we continue to place financial limitations on the growth of graduate programs. As we plan and implement our programs of higher education, it is important that we have meaningful input into this effort by the independent institutions of higher learning in this state.

I recognize the great need to make loans available for students in universities, junior colleges and vocational and technical programs to be distributed on the basis of need. We should make certain that all students have the opportunity to continue their education, commensurate with their abilities and aspirations. To this end, I have instructed my staff to explore all possibilities for the development of a major financial assistance program, which I hope to recommend to you during this session. I also ask that we provide the $1,100 increase provided for each teacher unit in the current law; that we provide for additional kindergarten units and take over the cost of required local effort in this area; and that we increase the funding of driver education and research and development programs. Further, I ask you to continue to encourage the community school concept and year-round program experimentation.

As a step toward better educational leadership, I urge you to enact legislation which will make local school board elections nonpartisan. The making of creative policy is in itself nonpartisan.

In the years just past, we have not enjoyed an atmosphere in which we could look objectively at our educational structure. I believe we can now approach this task with a common dedication to systematically explore ways of revitalizing and improving our entire school system. Therefore, I ask that you establish a legislative study commission to review in depth our present educational structure and that you return within the year with your recommendations.

Public Employees

The Florida Supreme Court has mandated legislative guidelines in the area of collective bargaining for school teachers and other public employees. It is time for us to comply with that mandate, and I recommend that we grant our public employees bargaining rights in all areas. I do not think, however, that there should be binding arbitration in fiscal matters. While we enact these guidelines, let us also insure the constitutional rights of our other citizens to be protected against public strikes. Unquestionably, we have a responsibility to provide penalties which are strong enough to discourage violations in this area.

As we seek to move Florida government ahead in the decade of the seventies, let us recognize that we must be able to attract and retain the best people we can find for public service. I am sure all of us recognize the need to keep state salaries competitive with those paid for similar positions in private industry. While I am not recommending any increases for elected officials, I strongly urge that we begin in the coming fiscal year to make the salary adjustments recommended in the Brown report for appointed officials and career service employees.

Florida's Environment

Last year, this state moved on many fronts to protect our precious natural resources; much, however, remains to be done. The destruction of our coastal zone continues at an accelerating rate, drainage of our wetlands and channelization of our waterways goes on, and our state and local efforts in environmental protection continue to be fragmented and inadequately coordinated. To complete last year's work, I direct your attention to the proposals of the Conservation 70's group—particularly the need to clarify our dredge and fill law in line with the constitutional amendment adopted by the voters last fall. A matter of the greatest priority is the reassessment of our existing governmental structure in the field of environmental conservation and protection.

Over the years, we have created a number of agencies, each with its separate involvement in the protection of our natural resources, and in some cases we have created internal conflicts which make effective decision-making impossible. The burden on these agencies has greatly increased as we have belatedly faced up to our mounting environmental problems, and they must be better coordinated and organized if environmental protection is to be an effective public policy.

Examples of necessary changes are the bills designed to consolidate the coastal coordinating council and the environmental inventory council and to effect the transfer of the bureau of sanitary engineering to the Department of Air and Water Pollution Control.

One final area of continuing concern is the problem of restoration of lands which have been subjected to the ravages of strip-mining. The quest for Florida's minerals leaves angry scars upon our landscape—ugly, unproductive eyesores which mar Florida's natural beauty.

We must begin reclaiming these lands and restoring them for future generations. The severance tax on minerals which should be imposed this year should allow a credit for the reclamation of previously mined areas, and, regardless of the credit, regulations should be implemented immediately to require reclamation in all future strip-mining.

Executive Organization

Governmental reorganization is a continuing task, and there are several other areas of our state government which require your attention in this session. For instance, it defies all logic to have a board serving under a board as is now the case with the racing commission and land sales board, both serving under the board of business regulation. In the interest of efficiency and more effective administration, I recommend the abolishment of both these boards. Chief administrators in these areas would work directly under the board of business regulation, whose responsibilities would include the setting of racing dates.

For a stronger and more effective Department of Commerce, I recommend legislation to divide its functions between six divisions, including a new division of tourism. Each of these changes can be accomplished without any increase in personnel or funds. We will, additionally, request legislation to revise the present industrial relations commission to provide a full-time and first-rate panel of industrial claims jurists to grapple with the growing flood of workmen's compensation claims and appeals.

Transportation

We must continue to seek out innovative ways to fund urban transportation systems, while also striving to improve our system of interstate, primary and secondary highways. I urge you also to carefully consider the package of safety bills designed to put Florida in full compliance with the 16 standards of the National Highway Safety Act.

Consumer Protection

There are many other areas which require your attention in this session. We began steps last year to give consumers the protection they need and we should continue these efforts this year. We need, for instance, to reassess the Public Service Commission to determine how this agency can be made more responsive to the consumer.

Presidential Primary

We need also to continue to improve our election laws. And, in this session, I recommend that you establish an open and competitive presidential primary, early enough in the year to enable Florida voters to influence the selection of national presidential candidates and early enough to advertise to the nation Florida's exceptional climate during the winter months when the rest of the country is still covered with snow.

General

I suggest that you also consider changing the method of issuing beverage licenses to enable the state to derive the real value of these licenses and eliminate the temptation of political favoritism, and I recommend that you freeze the distribution of racetrack funds to the counties at this year's level.

As you consider these recommendations in the light of meeting the needs of all our citizens, special consideration must be given those among us living on fixed incomes, such as our senior citizens.

I wish to add another thought. I would like to see equality of opportunity become a routine characteristic of the lives of all Floridians. Therefore, if we see evidence that the freedoms guaranteed by our State or U.S. Constitutions are being denied or diminished in any way, I will ask you to join me in unfettering those freedoms through appropriate legislation.

I cannot think of a single issue I have discussed with you today . . . a single program I have advocated . . . which does not have its spokesman or its originator in this legislature, and the time which I have taken to outline this program for progress and reform in Florida will be matched many times over on the same subjects and on many others in this house chamber and in the senate chamber at the other end of the hall as you deliberate, debate and act in the 60 days ahead.

I feel a great kinship for this legislature, not just because I was so recently a part of it but because of the sense of purpose and accomplishment which is reflected by the legislative leadership and by so many members of these two deliberative bodies. I have outlined an ambitious program—in many ways a difficult program—because it is my belief that you expect and deserve nothing less.

There will surely be long and difficult days ahead as you wrestle with the complex problems facing this state. But I want you to know that I stand ready to render any assistance that I might give so that we, together, can make Florida a better place for all our people. As I said when I took the oath of office in January, we are not blind to the fact that all will not agree with the course we are setting, but we see the responsibility of this administration to provide the leadership and the direction for this state and its people, and regardless of the difficulty or the controversy, we will not abdicate that responsibility.

Following the Governor's address, the committee previously appointed escorted the Governor from the rostrum and from the House chamber, followed by the Lieutenant Governor and members of the Cabinet and Supreme Court.
